PRESS RELEASE | Brussels, 5 December 2021 | European Volunteering Capital 2023 WINNER

CEV is pleased to announce that Trondheim (NO) has been awarded the title of European Volunteering Capital 2023

In choosing Trondheim as the European Volunteering Capital 2023 the jury highlights that the city is making outstanding efforts in prioritising quality volunteering and to publicly recognise volunteers and the contribution they make to the community.. The high volunteer-engagement rate is an extraordinary testimony to a long-term commitment and the creation of a strategic and regulatory framework that has been highly effective. It is based on an integrated voluntary policy across all strategies and plans which develops and strengthens the interaction between the municipality and volunteering. The approach is based on recognising the sector, emphasising its independence, and providing good conditions for volunteering.

The jury was very inspired by Trondheim which stands out for the way it has developed cross-sector collaboration, four-year strategic plans, grants and funding support for volunteering in a very comprehensive way. There is a very clear record of the achievements in stakeholder and citizen engagement embedded in values and principles. The investment in volunteer centres and professional support has supported this excellence.

The jury felt that the accomplishments of Asti, Birgu, & Oeiras municipalities to support and develop volunteering in the cities also deserves high recognition. The efforts undertaken to ensure a comprehensive vision for volunteering by the municipalities, quality volunteering and recognition of its role has been seen by the jury as outstanding elements of the overall support shown to volunteers and volunteering by the candidates. The supporting structures and relationships established with and within different contexts, shows the presence of an enabling environment for volunteering in all cases that was particularly appreciated by the jury. The judging criteria are the recommendations in the Policy Agenda for Volunteering in Europe (PAVE), CEV's 5R policy recommendations and the planned engagement with the European Solidarity Corps.
